

President's Report 2021 – 2022

The snowmobiling year started with great promise with snow in mid-November, unfortunately that was quickly dashed as the public health restrictions once again came into play. To help ensure the safety of our members we decided it best to not hold any of the events we had planned for the year. These decisions although necessary do have an impact on the financial well being of the club so we are hopeful that this year's events can go ahead as planned.

We did have some good news; through the hard work of Randy Steinhauer we were granted approval to construct a new warm-up shelter at the Centre of Saskatchewan. Work on the trail and site preparation have begun and we are tentatively planning for construction to start in the spring of 2023.

As is the case each year we need the support of everyone to help clear and maintain our trails. The club will continue to organize some trail clearing days, however if you are unable to attend one of those you can initiate your own morning, afternoon or full day event. Be sure to inform the trail coordinators of the trail you have cleaned, as they will inform your fellow members that the trail is open. Without your participation and support we will start to lose our trails.

The snow has come again in November and the lakes and muskeg should soon start to freeze. These are signs of a good snowmobiling year, enjoy.
